Risk Disclaimer

Trading in financial products (such as foreign exchange, cryptocurrencies, or binary options) involves a high level of risk and is therefore not suitable for safe-haven investors. In particular, leverage involves a high degree of risk. The high leverage effect can work for you, but also against you. Carefully consider your goals in investing or speculating, your financial position, your risk-taking, your needs, and your experience and knowledge of the matter before you begin trading online on the financial markets or OTC trading platforms.

There is always a correlation between high profit and high risk. Any type of trading and speculation with financial products that can generate an unusually high return means an equally increased risk.

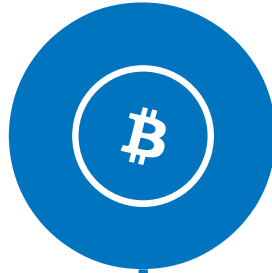

Keep in mind that past profits are no guarantee of positive results in the future. In speculative trading in foreign exchange, contracts for difference, or (binary) options, you can lose all or part of your capital. Only trade with money that you can easily afford to lose. Be aware of all the risks associated with online trading of financial products. Before depositing funds, if possible, gain deep experience trading in fictitious capital. You can then test your chosen strategy without financial risk and familiarize yourself with the traded financial products.
